Stand Up for Gender and Pronoun Integrity at School

School will soon be in session again. Will your child be asked about personal pronouns during class introductions? It's a propaganda game, we all know, and a backhanded way to force verbal support for the harmful gender deviance agenda. So how can your child be ready to stand up against this insulting, unscientific tyranny? Mission America is compiling a list of responses for your principled child to preserve gender integrity. Do you have suggestions? Put yourself in the place of a third grader— make it short and not too confrontational. "I'll be calling my lawyer" is probably not the best response for that age!

For teens, we may want them to step up and be a little bolder. It all depends on the personality of your child, and you are the best judge of that. If you have suggested phrases, please email them to us at info@missionamerica.com. We will report the results soon! Thank you.

Have you heard this claim, that unless gender confused kids are given medications to try to change their biological sex, that they are at higher risk of suicide?

This is the huge club held over the heads of parents, teachers and others who encounter these troubled children. But a recent study shows the opposite—that the more easy access there is to gender medications, the more likely the teen is to attempt suicide.

This new study tells us what we have known all along—that it is dangerous to fool with Mother Nature, or actually, our Creator, Father God. The medical attempts to slow down the body's natural process of puberty, and then to give a teen opposite sex hormones, is fraught with potential future complications. It should never, ever be done on a developing body.

Do Children Matter to America Anymore?

When we compromise on moral issues like sexuality and marriage, we can expect huge losses in the fight to protect children from corruption. The only way we will turn this tide is to stand strong.

Mission America is not giving in to cultural madness, because God's truth has not changed, so our faith should not, either. That's why our reach is expanding. We live in very challenging times, but darkness provides more opportunities for light to shine even brighter.
