Will Gender Integrity Be Preserved By Ohio State School Board?

The resolution at the Ohio State Board of Education opposing harmful gender ideology in schools did not pass the board on Wednesday, October 12, unfortunately. It was referred to the executive committee for further action. The solid conservatives on the board did not vote for this delaying tactic, but they were not enough to keep this referral from happening.

So on Monday, October 31, the Executive Committee meets and will re-consider this resolution. We give them credit for not ducking it indefinitely. However, what will the result be? Will an amended version water down the intent of the resolution? Or will children be protected from radicals who want to sell them harmful gender ideology at school, even without parent consent?

This is from Ohio State School Board Member Brendan Shea, who presented the Title IX resolution to the board in September: "I'm spreading the word that a special executive committee meeting has been scheduled for this Monday, October 31st. Agenda is superintendent search discussion 12:30-1:30, Title IX resolution discussion 1:30-4:00 and possible vote to send it back to the full Board for a vote on November 15th. There will be no public testimony at the 31st committee meeting but there will be on the 15th. I'm asking folks to circulate this information among their network, especially those who live in the Columbus area, in hopes of having a strong presence of support at the committee meeting. Thanks!" Let's Keep Standing Together in Truth

Our public schools are producing the future citizens of America, friends. Even if we choose to educate our children elsewhere, we cannot disengage from the public school system.
